

Keyo Training is a UK based training company that has over 50 years-experience within the forklift truck industry.

As of 2020, Keyo Agricultural Services have branched into the training and certification for forklift operators. As a company we have invested heavily in training and the training centre.

With a strong focus on the agricultural and transport industries, we are able to offer a variety of different courses at Keyo Training.

Priding ourselves on quality and high standards, our approach to training is reflected in this. All our instructors are up to date with the latest qualifications and practices. As a result, we are able to ensure that candidates receive the best training experience possible and to feel confident in their abilities to complete the job to the highest standards.

s
Within the first aid training we complete all training in a relaxed and easy manner. Using skills base first aid as our provider we ensure that the focus is on confidence and not on testing. As standard all first aid courses have defibrillator training in-built into the content.

Due to the increasing number of defibrillators available in the community and workplace, it's vital we ensure that candidates are confident in the application and use of such devices. Again, as standard all first aid courses cover child and baby first aid.

For details of their range of forklift training courses: Click Here

For details of their First Aid training courses: Click Here

For further details contact Neil Wilson: neil@keyo.co.uk